ASC Foundation Board Launches Legacy Fund

Stimulated by a generous gift from Dr. Leopold Koss to endow a lectureship in his honor, the American Society of Cytopathology (ASC) Foundation has created the ASC Legacy Fund. This fund endows a lectureship to honor Dr. Koss for his long involvement in cytopathology research, teaching and patient care, and his many contributions to the ASC. Everyone who is practicing in the field of cytopathology has been touched directly or indirectly by Dr. Koss. His fellows, who have gained immensely from his inspired teaching, wisdom, mentoring and steadfast dedication to furthering excellence in the practice of cytopathology, can be found around the world. His texts have evolved from a modest one volume book to an encyclopedic two volume 5th edition, which has been translated by some of his disciples into Mandarin Chinese.

As Dr. Koss approaches his 90th birthday, he is still going to work at Montefiore Hospital to interact with the residents, fellows and staff to teach and to learn. He is the ultimate role model. He holds name recognition not only among practicing cytopathologists and surgical pathologists, but among clinicians in a variety of specialties, thus raising awareness and credibility for our field.

I ask that you join me to endow this very special lectureship to honor Dr. Koss for his seminal contributions to our discipline. The ASC Foundation hopes to raise a minimum of $250,000 to insure the fund a permanent endowment. The lecture will be presented annually at the ASC Annual Scientific Meeting by a prominent icon in the medical field who shares a dedication and commitment to furthering humanities. ■
